

Walking Sticks

Name: Date:

CCSS.ELA.RI.3.4 · Easy

Walking sticks are used by people in many different ways. Some people use them to help them walk on uneven ground. Some people use them to lean on when they are standing. Some people use them to help them climb trees. Some people use them to help them dig for food. Some people use them to help them build shelters. Some people use them to help them make tools. Some people use them to help them make art. Some people use them to help them make music. Some people use them to help them make jewelry. Some people use them to help them make clothing. Some people use them to help them make furniture. Some people use them to help them make houses. Some people use them to help them make boats. Some people use them to help them make cars. Some people use them to help them make airplanes. Some people use them to help them make rockets. Some people use them to help them make space shuttles. Some people use them to help them make satellites. Some people use them to help them make computers. Some people use them to help them make televisions. Some people use them to help them make radios. Some people use them to help them make cameras. Some people use them to help them make microscopes. Some people use them to help them make telescopes. Some people use them to help them make binoculars. Some people use them to help them make cameras. Some people use them to help them make microscopes. Some people use them to help them make telescopes. Some people use them to help them make binoculars.

1. Main idea	2. Supporting detail #1
3. Supporting detail #2	4. Inferential question
5. Vocabulary in context	6. Author's purpose